Falkland Pendant

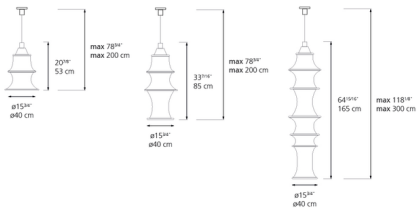

By Artemide

Description

The Falkland Pendant by Artemide is a poetic dance between tension and form, an iconic piece designed by Bruno Munari in 1964. Far more than just a light fixture, it's a living sculpture that gracefully adapts to its environment, embodying a timeless design that remains relevant and captivating even today.Crafted from a finely woven elastic fabric stretched over a series of metal rings of varying diameters, the Falkland creates an organic silhouette that's both fluid and strikingly adaptable. A single internal light source, paired with a subtle aluminum reflector, illuminates the fabric from within, highlighting its delicate texture and elegant curves. This unique construction also allows the Falkland to be compressed for shipping, gracefully expanding into its full, beautiful shape upon installation. The result is a soft, diffused light that creates a warm and inviting ambiance, perfect for dining areas, living rooms, or commercial spaces. Its sculptural presence means it acts as a piece of art even when unlit, seamlessly blending with both Contemporary and Transitional decors.
